ANNOUNCEMENTS

Regular Matinee at Davis Theatre Today.

That delightful little person of the screen, Marguerite Clark, is at the Davis theatre this afternoon and Saturday in a photoplay comedy, "A Girl Named Mary." It is a pleasant, heartwarming story wit a true-to-life bit of girl psychology intermingled. Miss Clark, the cheery body who has been at her tack of making the world a trifile gayer ever since the movies first started moving, has a character vehicle this time. The original is by Juliet Wilbor Thornykins and we believe it has had somewhat of a career both as a magazine serial and a book. It is as bright a bundle of sunshine as we remember seeing in a long time. If you are looking for something more than entertainment, you might quite correctly say that "A Girl Named Mary" is an interesting angle on the much mooted question of heredity and environment as well as a good story well filmed.

A most unusual picture, laif amens

well filmed.

A most unusual picture, laid among the Texas Rangers is "When a Man Rides Alone," a William Russell production, the second feature on the programme. This is undoubtedly the great western romance feature of the year. It has a quality all its own. It suggests or impresses with the idea that a western D'Ariagnan has sprung up with more wild abandon, more uncurbed romance and greater adventure than Dumas' famous character. It is an echo of the days when the rapier and the poniard decided love and life problems. Although the six shooter is eloquent in the picture, one can almost see the glamor of the middle ages and the chivalry and adventure of the era.

Current Events and a funny Muttand Jeff comedy completes the show.

Boston English Opera Co. Presents Faust at Davis Theatre Tonight.

Miss Hazel Eden, the leading soprano with the Boston English Opera company which comes to the Davis theatre tonight is an American singer with a firm faith of musical expression. Her professional career in opera was begun with the Chicago Opera company, and while with that organization she sang such principal roles as Stephano in Romeo and Juliet, with Gali Curci and Muratert, Edminin in Louise, Madeline in Victor Herbert's opera of that name, Gretel in Hansel and Gretel Santurna in Cavalleria Rusticana, Frederic in Mignon and the title role in Aida. In order that she might sing in English, Miss Eden gave up her position with the Chicago company. During her three years there, she proved herself one of the most valuable and reliable artists. But she was not satisfied to sing in Italian or in French. Vocally and artistically she felt herself fitted to biaze the way for the young American artists by showing the public that opera can be given in English just as artistically as in any other language. the answer when you see beautiful Mary MacLaren in "The Forged Bride," he strangest, tenderest picture that was ever your good fortune to see. Don't miss it. A Kinogram weekly will closs the Strand's programme.

Tom Moore heads the double feature bill at the Breed theatro today and Saturday in his latest offering "Toby's Bow" adapted from the successful stage play of the same name. American in locale and in spirit, "Toby's Bow" is a bright, fastmoving photoplay with New York's gay Bohemia and the Sunny South forming a contrasting and colorful scenic background for its action. Midnight revels, gay and unrestrained in New York's famous Latin quarters and a spectacular masque ball contrasted with the tranquil life of a family of southern aristocrats give to "Toby's Bow" the variety of setting and action that is necessarily incorporated into a perfectly balanced photoplay. For the second feature Corrine Criffith will be seen in her latest production "Human Collateral." a pow-Tom Moore heads the double feaduction "Human Collateral," a pow-erful drama of sacrifice and the Pathe news will complete the bill for Friday and Saturday.
